EASTER SEALS SOUTHWEST HUMAN DEVELOPMENT LAUNCHES STATE'S FIRST COMPREHENSIVE DEVELOPMENTAL CENTER FOR CHILDREN

Half-Million Dollar Grant from the Virginia G. Piper Charitable Trust Helps Fund Center

PHOENIX (March 15, 2011) – Easter Seals Southwest Human Development today announced it opened the Children's Developmental Center, the state's first comprehensive facility serving Arizona children ages birth to five with disabilities and behavioral challenges. A three-year, $500,000 grant from the Virginia G. Piper Charitable Trust will help support the Center.

"Every child and family is unique and deserves a one-of-a-kind plan for coordinated disabilities support," said Ginger Ward, CEO, Easter Seals Southwest Human Development. "Our 'One Child, One Family, One Team' approach is a blended health, developmental and mental health model, and is the first-of-its-kind Arizona."

The critical need for establishing coordinated care as the standard is widely accepted and has been made a top priority of the American Academy of Pediatrics (AAP). Unfortunately, due to the challenges and costs involved with true coordinated care, it is largely unavailable in Arizona, especially for children with disabilities. The Children's Developmental Center's goal is to wrap services around the child and family by offering:

- Comprehensive developmental assessments
- A feeding program for infants and young children
- Autism services
- Occupational, physical and speech therapy
- Psychology and counseling services
- Assistive technology services.

Terrence Matteo, Ph.D., will serve as the Director of the Children's Developmental Center and will serve alongside Trudi Norman-Murch Ph.D., CCC-SLP, as Co-Director of Services for Children with Disabilities. Doctor Matteo will lead a group of specialists in providing integrated, coordinated care. The Children's Developmental Center is located at 2850 N. 24th Street, Phoenix, AZ 85008.
