EASTER SEALS SOUTHWEST HUMAN DEVELOPMENT WELCOMES DR. DANIEL B. KESSLER TO CHILDREN'S DEVELOPMENTAL CENTER

PHOENIX (August 11, 2011) – Easter Seals Southwest Human Development recently welcomed Dr. Daniel B. Kessler, a developmental and behavioral pediatrician, as Medical Director at the non-profit's newly opened Children's Developmental Center. The Center helps children with complex disabilities and developmental issues, offering parents a holistic approach through a collaborative team effort. The Center's services include expert assessments, individualized care plans, state-of-the-art therapy services and care-coordination.

"Southwest Human Development places a high priority on hiring the most knowledgeable and experienced professionals in the child development field to better serve children with disabilities and their families," stated Ginger Ward, Founder and CEO of the organization. "Dr. Kessler is a valuable resource to the community and his colleagues at the Center, providing specialized pediatric and behavioral expertise and direct access for consultations."

Dr. Kessler, a former "Best Doc" as voted by Phoenix Magazine and previous pediatric faculty with St. Joseph's Hospital and Medical Center, is recognized nationally for his work in autism, attention deficit/hyperactivity disorder, learning and emotional adjustment, and feeding and self-regulation. As Medical Director for the Children's Developmental Center, he is treating children age birth to five years for assessment, consultation, treatment, referral and advocacy, and also consults for other programs at Southwest Human Development requiring medical expertise. Dr. Kessler plays an instrumental role in offering the Center's "One Child, One Family, One Team" approach, which includes the child's physicians, therapists and caregivers in the assessment and treatment process. The Center is unique in Arizona for providing the full range of medical, developmental, and mental health professionals as part of one team.

"Southwest Human Development is nationally recognized for its innovative and comprehensive early childhood services," said Dr. Kessler. "I am eager to serve the Children's Developmental Center, as the opportunity will allow me to impart my knowledge and share my experiences with the community in a team-setting - which is critical to successfully identifying and treating children's developmental challenges."
